Diplomat to Be Honored By Manhattan College

Mauricio Nabuco
The New York Times

Manhattan College will grant an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws to Mauricio Nabuco, Brazilian Ambassador to the United States, at commencement exercises next Tuesday afternoon. The 61-year-old diplomat headed his country's mission to the Vatican prior to his appointment to Washington in 1948.

Mr. Nabuco is the son of Joaquim Nabuco, who in 1905 became the first Brazilian Ambassador to the United States. He has been Ambassador to Chile, Secretary General of the Foreign Office in Rio de Janeiro, and chairman of Brazil's delegation to the second meeting of Foreign Ministers at Havana in 1940.

The largest class in Manhattan's history, 695 graduates, will receive bachelors' degrees at Tuesday's ceremonies. Cardinal Spellman will preside and confer the degrees.
